Course catalogue

BTH offers several courses taught in English for incoming exchange students. When you select courses, you have to consider the prerequisites and the timetable. The prerequisites are stated under each course and they should be respected.

The Swedish academic year is divided into two semesters, 20 weeks each. Each semester is divided into two study periods, worth 15 credits each. Not all courses can be studied full-time, and some courses may run for more than one period. Note that for full-time studies you should take 30 credits each semester. Plan your studies so that you take 15 credits each study period. Normally that should be two courses.

There are several factors determining whether you can be accepted or not to the courses:

- The type of agreement between your home institution and BTH (university wide agreement or specific faculty or department level agreement)
- Specific admission requirements of the courses
- The number of available study places on the courses

In general, if you meet the admission requirements and there are places available you will be accepted. Therefore, it is very important that your Transcripts of Records are in English, otherwise the Admission Office will not be able to evaluate your application.
